Preface

The Islamic calendar begins with the great event of Hijrah, the migration of Prophet Muḥammad (peace be on him) and his companions from Makkat al-Mukarramah to Madinat al-Munawwarrah. The adoption of this event as the beginning of the Islamic calendar took place during the caliphate of ‘Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb.

The Islamic calendar consists of twelve lunar months, each of which lasts from the first sighting of the crescent to the next. The twelve months of the Islamic calendar are Muḥarram, Šafar, Rabī‘al-Awwal, Rabī‘al-Thānī, Jamād al-Awwal, Jamād al-Thānī, Rajab, Sha‘bān, Ramaḍān, Shawwāl, Dhū al-Qa’dah, and Dhū al-Ḥijjah. Because of the lunar nature of this calendar, each month generally consists of 29 or 30 days. Thus, the Islamic calendar, which is approximately 354 days long, variates in relation to the 365-day solar year, with each month beginning ten or eleven days earlier each year. Furthermore, because the sighting of the moon may vary with longitude and latitude, the Muslim calendar also may vary from region to region, but it runs concurrently with the Gregorian or universal solar calendar.

The Islamic calendar is an emblem of Islam, which manifests the centrality of the Ummah (the Muslim community). It also expresses the importance of the historical events in Islam. It is a fact that historical events effect the ethical, social, cultural, economic and political behaviour of the nations. For this reason, historical dates and events hold an important place in history and they have always been of great interest for scholars, students, and researchers alike.

In all the domains of Islamic studies, it is common to come across the Hijrī and Gregorian calendars. The Islamic literature of the past only have Hijrah dates, whereas, the Western literature provides Gregorian dates. This situation creates difficulty for the scholars, students and researchers in comparing and correlating the two calendars, which also wastes their time in finding the required date of a particular event. The present work is an attempt to remove this difficulty by bringing both calendars at one place.

The present work “Calendar of Islamic Historical Events”, has the following features:

1. Month-wise comparative tables of Hijrī and Gregorian calendars, from the first year of Hijrah to year 1425, which are based on Wustenfeld’s calendar.
2. Major events from the life of Prophet Muḥammad (peace be on him) relating to his personal life, missionary activities, battles and other social, and political events.
3. Demise dates of the luminaries of Islamic history including the companions (Ṣaḥābah) of the Prophet (peace be on him), their followers (Ṭabi‘īn), followers of the followers (Ṭab‘a Ṭabi‘īn), jurists (Fuqahā), exegetes of Qur’ān (Mufasssīrīn), interpreters of Ḥadīth (Muḥaddithīn), renowned scholars, philosophers, saints, social reformers, rulers, political figures, judges, diplomats, historians, writers, journalists and poets.

4. Events that had an impact on the social, economic and political history of the Islamic World in general.
5. Foreign words and names have diacritical marks to assist in right pronunciation.

The book “Calendar of Islamic Historical Events” is the product of the data extracted from works like Tarājim, Ṭabaqāt, Asmā’ al-Rijāl, chronologies and Almanacs which were available in English, Arabic, and Urdu Languages. Other sources like newspapers, magazines, and Islamic web-sites were also used. A select bibliography has been provided at the end of the book for further reading.

While using, this book a reader may not find the record of certain events. The reason, is that the format of this book, which required the date or month of an event, which was not available to the author.

The format of the book proceeds in this manner: Each table is designated to a Hijrī year, marked as AH, which mean, After Hijrah. Every table has four columns. The first column presents the twelve months of Hijrī year, each of them showing the ‘first day’ of that Hijrī month. The second column provides the corresponding day, which falls on the first day of that particular month. The third column indicates the corresponding Gregorian date and month marked as CE, which means the Christian Era. The fourth column shows the events. In this column, the Hijrī or Christian date of an event is recorded. But, if an event does not carry a date, it means, that the specific event has occurred sometime, in that Hijri month.

It is hoped that this work will fulfil the need of scholars, students and researchers. How successful the author is in making a healthy contribution to the world of scholarly research is for the readers to judge. However, having done the level best, the author shoulders all the responsibility for any deficiency that characterises works of this nature.

I would also like to record my sincere gratitude and thanks to the scholars and the library staff of Islamic Research Institute, International Islamic University Islamabad, whose guidance throughout this research has been of immense value in completing this work.

Finally, all praises are due to Allah Subhānahu wa Ta‘ālā, and peace & blessings be on Prophet Muḥammad. I pray to Allah Almighty to accept this humble endeavour, and reward with the best of both Worlds, and to all those who helped me in various capacities.
